

David March, Co-Founder and Managing Partner of Entropy Investment Management, brings 35 years of experience in technology development, operations and executive management to the firm. Prior to co-founding Entropy, David was founder and CEO of a high technology startup developing instrumentation for pharmaceutical development as well as COO of 3 high technology companies and VP of R&D and Product Development. David is a Magna Cum Laude Graduate in Engineering Chemistry with two academic awards in analytics from Lehigh University where he also received his MBA in Finance. David's career has been focused on process optimization where he has been awarded two patents in energy, process and material optimization in complex processes and has published 10 articles on a variety of business process improvements.